The Power to Surprise™

To Whom It May Concern

In September 2009 we installed Green Energy panels at our Dallas Kia store and are still in operation. In 2009 electric rates were much higher then than they are now and the panels did substantially cut our kilowatt usage resulting in lower electric bills. However, after a couple of years, we began to notice the decline of wear and tear on electrical components such as computers, AC units and lighting. Computers started lasting longer, AC units needed just general maintenance and compressors were holding up as well as capacitors and fan motors. Also, the outside parking lot lights were not going out as frequently and just in general electrical components just held up better. As a result of this we now have the energy panels installed in all of our dealerships.
